

Jack Macy is the Commercial Zero Waste Senior Coordinator for the City and County of San Francisco, Department of the Environment. He is an internationally recognized zero waste leader and speaker. He has 30 years of experience in developing and managing innovative composting, recycling and other zero waste programs and policies at the local and state level in California and Massachusetts. This includes leading the creation of San Francisco's model food composting programs and policies establishing a zero waste goal, mandating composting and recycling, banning EPS and requiring compostable and recyclable products, banning plastic bags and charging for checkout bags.